

MARSHAL COLLINS GATHERS THEM IN

Glen Echo Motor Cars' Enemy's Zeal Not Decreased.

H. C. Perkins and Party Captured Red-Handed at Curve.

Forty Miles an Hour the Charge, and $50 Deposit.

The failure of his efforts to bring the chauffeur of Theodore P. Shonts to the bar of justice has not relaxed the vigilance of Town Marshal Collins, of Glen Echo, in sleuthing for motorists who persist in exceeding the speed limit in his jurisdiction. Mr. Collins pays particular attention to Washington society people, and yesterday he landed Henry Cleveland Perkins, of 1701 Connecticut avenue, and a party who had been passing the Maryland scenery with astonishing celerity.

Mr. Perkins left Washington about 7 o'clock in the evening, and as soon as the streets of the city had been left behind the chauffeur turned the machine loose, and it went out the Conduit road at about forty miles an hour.

Collins Was Watching.

Sunday is Marshal Collins' busy day. He saw the machine coming and was ready with his trusty bicycle. The motor car whizzed past Glen Echo so quickly that it was hardly discernible to the naked eye, but the marshal was on the job, and on his wheel in hot pursuit. The car kept on, but Collins, knowing the party would return by the same route, planned himself at a turn in the road that is rather treacherous, and to round which motor cars must slacken speed. Partially he was slowed down, and then Collins loomed up on the horizon and held up the party.

The motorists were taken to the office of Mayor Garrett, in Glen Echo, and the chauffeur required to deposit $50 for his appearance in court next Thursday.

Many Complainants.

Mr. Perkins put up the money, and with spirit just a little diffident the party went on its way. Besides the chauffeur at 1 Mr. Perkins there were two women and another man in the car. The chauffeur gave his name as J. C. Conway.

When the Perkins party arrived at Mayor Garrett's office they found that they had been preceded by several persons who were there to protest against the party for the rate of speed they maintained going out the Conduit road. It was charged that the machine was run at a speed of forty miles an hour and without regard to other people along the road. One witness said he narrowly escaped being run over a steep embankment. The marshal told Mayor Garrett that the machine did not have the Maryland license number displayed.

Many congratulations have reached The Sunday Times on the selection of Mrs. Joseph C. Rice, of 1204 K street northwest, as the winner of the fifth and last weekly contest. The judges who awarded the prize to her were Robert Coleman Child, C. K. Berryman, and Miss Aline Solomons, all well-known artists.

A letter from her husband to the Beauty Editor today says: "While Mrs. Rice is a great surprise that she should be considered beautiful, I must confess that I should have been surprised had she not been."

Combination Rarely Found.

"She is truly beautiful; the beauty of her face being surpassed only by the magnificence of her soul. So beautiful a face, crowned with the simplicity and unconsciousness of a little child, is a combination rarely found in woman."

A Virginian by birth and descended from generations of Virginians, she is purely American. And, to my thinking, the typical American type of beauty. She is tall, graceful and perfectly formed; she is neither blonde or brunette; her hair is chestnut brown, while her glowing eyes have absorbed their coloring from the clear blue skies of western Virginia.

A student of art myself, I was confident that a composite of beauty and art at once recognize in my wife the truly beautiful woman."

One of the last pictures to reach the editor before the contest closed was accompanied by the following letter: "Here is my mother's picture. I want to put it in your paper and am sure she will win the prize. I am a little boy, eleven years old."

Thanks The Times.

The following congratulatory letter was also received: "Beauty Editor: 'I wish to thank you for the prompt action of your valuable paper in securing the photograph of Miss Olivia Williams, or, as I see in last evening's Times, Mrs. N. C. Reed. I am a stranger to the young lady, and when making inquiries about her I did not know she was a Mrs.'"

Judges Must Now Decide.

The Sunday Times has conducted this beauty contest in a way calculated to bring to the front the most lovely woman in this city. It believes it has accomplished this purpose. The only condition to be complied with was that the women whose photographs were entered in the contest should be bona fide residents of the District of Columbia. The field, therefore, was open to all who responded to the requests for photographs were prompt and numerous, entirely satisfactory in every way.

The Sunday Times has done its best. The public has done its best. It only remains for the discerning eyes of the judges in the national contest to judge well, and the national award will come to Washington's candidate.

WHISKY SENT BY EXPRESS TO DRY TOWNS CAUSES SUIT

In the United States Supreme Court a case has come up for argument that is a novelty in law to defeat the prohibition statutes of Kentucky. A Cincinnati firm shipped to drinking men in the prohibition counties of Kentucky a gallon jug of whisky, notifying them by letter that the whisky was at their station C. O. D. and that they could get it by payment of the C. O. D.

The Adams and American Express Companies are defendants in the Kentucky courts holding that the express companies violated the prohibition laws by selling whisky. The dealers contend the transaction is interstate business.

MARINES WERE WITHIN THEIR RIGHTS

Ejection From Library Was Very Likely Unjustified.

Corporal Richard S. Frye, one of the Marines who was ejected from the Congressional Library last Tuesday night, has complied with the order of the Secretary of the Navy, and written a complete and detailed statement of the circumstances under which he was compelled to leave the Government building at the instance of a watchman.

Private Robert G. Elliott, the other Marine who was ejected, who had been under orders to join the Marine guard of the new battleship Kansas at League Island, Philadelphia, left the city last Thursday before the order of Secretary Metcalf reached him. This has resulted in a delay in the investigation of the case, as his report has not yet reached the department.

Believe Watchman Wrong.

According to the information contained in Corporal Frye's statement, the watchman was totally wrong in charging the men with firing with women, and if that was not the reason why he ejected them, as he himself has explained, then it is claimed it must have been because of their uniform. In an endeavor to throw more light on the situation, the watchman's point of view, the chief clerk of the library has taken the matter up personally with the head of the Navy Department.

Corporal Frye's Explanation.

Corporal Frye, in his statement, not only declares that they were not firing with women, and gives a plausible explanation to prove that he wasn't, but he declares when he explained his acquaintance with the two women in whose company he and Elliott were previously seen, the watchman replied that their "uniform is too conspicuous, anyway," and that they would better leave. This they did, he affirms, quietly and without further remark.

Waiting to Hear From Elliott.

The officials are inclined to believe the statement of Corporal Frye, as confirmed by the two women. In the meantime, they will take no action till Private Elliott has been heard from, and the case has been thoroughly investigated through other channels. The navy and marine officials, charged over the outcome of the case of the suit of a yeoman of the navy against an amusement company, at Newport, are determined to reach a safe conclusion as to whether the uniforms of the marines were against them. If so, the case will be put up to the President, who will be expected to order the dismissal of the library watchman, in line with his expressions upholding the navy and army uniform as a badge of honor and bitterly condemning persons who do not properly respect it or discriminate against it.

John M. Krous Dies at Age of 51 Years

John M. Krous, fifty-one years old, and for more than thirty years a resident of Washington, died suddenly at his home, 314 Bates street northwest, yesterday, as a result of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Funeral services will be held from the residence this afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Verbyke, of the Gurley Presbyterian Church, officiating, and will be attended by delegations from the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Knights of Pythias, and the German Bazar, in all of which organizations Mr. Krous was a prominent member. Burial will be made at Rock Creek Cemetery, and two members from each of the fraternal organizations will act as pallbearers.

Mr. Krous was born in New York, but came to this city when a young man. Thirty years ago he married Miss Rose Schirmer, and the couple took up a residence in the house where they have lived ever since. Several months ago Mr. Krous' health failed, and he retired from business. He was not considered dangerously ill, however, and his sudden death came as a great shock to his wife, who survives him.

WOULDN'T GO BACK TO OLD DAYS OF COFFEE MISERY FOR MILLIONS.

A New York lady is emphatic about coffee, and in comparing her former condition when using it with the late improvement under Postum Food Coffee, says: "We have used Postum instead of coffee for the past four years, and have been greatly benefited by the change."

"I have always had a weak stomach from childhood, and about five years ago one doctor told me I must leave off coffee entirely. I thought I could not, but tried it for a few mornings, using cocoa in its place, but tired of it."

"Then I went back to coffee, and kept getting worse, until my stomach was unable to hold or digest much of anything."

"One day I got hold of a little booklet, and decided to try Postum. I read it and decided to try Postum. I got better as time went on, and we all learned to like it so well that now we use it to the exclusion of everything else in the line of drink at table."

"This summer I went away for two weeks and my husband took his coffee at the restaurant. As he did not drink coffee, he asked for Postum. They brought it to him, 'pale, weak stuff,' made in a hurry."

"But the first morning after I returned home he said, 'Oh, it seems good to have a cup of Postum that's made right.' At the restaurant, he said, they did not hold it long enough. 'Postum must be well boiled to get the delicious flavor—see directions.'"

"Back to the old days of suffering go millions. I have a friend who drank Postum for two weeks, during a siege of typhoid fever, the only nourishment she took in all that time, and she came out all right. I would be willing to give $100 a box for Postum rather than coffee."

"Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read 'The Road to Wellville' in page. There's a Reason."

The writers are bearing in mind that May 4 will be Horace's fourth birthday, and all are hoping and praying he will be found by or before that date.

A new theory is advanced by Charles N. Evans, of 1 street southwest. In a letter to The Times he ventures the opinion that some young man from Sioux City, Iowa, Dr. Marvin's former home, spirited the child away. Mr. Evans does not believe Dr. Marvin has ever suspected the young man.

A few of the letters received today follow:

Back to Sioux City.

"To the Editor of The Washington Times: 'I think that Dr. Marvin's child has been taken back to Sioux City, Iowa, by some young man whom the doctor is personally well acquainted with, but would not for a moment think this young man has the interest in the child that would cause him to spirit the little one away. Hoping the doctor will find his child, I am, yours truly, 'CHARLES N. EVANS, '431 I street southwest, Washington, D. C.'"

Suggests School Collection.

"To the Editor of The Washington Times: 'I am a little girl, twelve years old, attend the public school, and am in the fifth grade. I have been reading The Times every evening and Sunday ever since dear little Horace was lost. I do not think that he is dead, but think that he was carried away by those men in the wagon, and is being held for a large reward. I think it would be a good plan if every school in different cities would take a collection among the school children and offer it as a reward for the recovery of the darling child. If some boy or girl would offer a large sum as a reward I am sure they would be more than paid for the joy and pleasure they would bring to his father's heart. I know if the parties holding the child knew how his dear father is suffering they would restore him at once to the father's arms. BESSIE M. DE SILVA, 122 North Fayette street, Alexandria."

Her Brother Was Lost.

"To the Editor of The Washington Times: 'I am very much interested in the loss of Horace Marvin. And I have great hope to hear that he is found. One day when my brother was lost I was very much frightened, and I said that I would not go home without him. 'An' hope Horace is found the same way as my brother Alfred was. I think the man and woman have taken Horace from his home. I hope he will very strange to have him found on May 4. I hope before May 4 he will be found. My brother was not lost. I hope he will be found soon. 'HELEN POITISS (nine years old), 'Fourth Grade, Wheatley School."

Remembers His Birthday.

"To the Editor of The Washington Times: 'I wait patiently for The Times every evening, and I am greatly interested in the loss of Horace Marvin. I read the letters other girls about my age wrote and tried to write for myself, as I hope Horace will be found alive. 'I think the man and woman seen on the boat may have taken Horace from his home in Delaware. I hope the child will soon be found. 'It would be very queer to have him found on May 4 (his birthday), and I hope he is found on May 4 or before. 'DORIS CARR, 'Nine years old, 125 Morse street northeast, fourth grade Wheatley School."

Sister Tells Her About Horace.

"To the Editor of The Washington Times: 'I am a little girl and am seven years old. I go to the Adams School, second grade. I can not read the papers very well, but my sister always tells me about the kidnapping of little 'Chubby' Marvin. I think it is a very sad case, and I know the feelings of my family if I were lost. I am very sorry for Mr. Marvin, and hope little 'Chubby' will be found. 'Your little friend, 'HENRIETTA SHULMAN, '1500 Q street northwest."

Wants the Post Cards.

"To the Editor of The Washington Times: 'Please send Marvin post cards to my address, a dozen will be as many, perhaps, as I shall be able to send out, with the prayer to Him, who alone can guide aright in any endeavor and so much more needed in such a case as this. A prayer that the dear boy may—shall-be found at once. 'W. B. WINN."

RUDOLPH A. KING DIES AT 66 YEARS

Confederate Veteran and Well-Known Washington Resident.

Rudolph Alpheus King died this morning at 9:48 o'clock at his apartments in the Alabama, Eleventh and N streets northwest, as the result of kidney trouble. He had been ill for three weeks.

Mr. King was one of the old residents of Washington, having been born here sixty-two years ago. He was the son of the late Z. M. P. King. He was a Confederate veteran, serving through the war and Theda Delta Chi fraternity. Mr. King had not been in active business life for twenty years.

He is survived by his wife, three sons, two daughters, and seven grandchildren. The children are Dr. W. P. M. King, Z. M. P. King, R. A. King, Jr., Mrs. Mary D. King, and Mrs. Harry C. Lewis, all of Washington.

CLIFTON FORGE GRAVE FOR LOVERS WHO DIED

down over her plump, delicately colored cheeks. Her lips were contracted into a smile, and two large, loose coils of black hair rested on her forehead.

Wears Stuart's Wedding Ring.

On the ring finger of her left hand she wore a heavy plain gold circlet, her wedding ring given her by Stuart while they were on the train going to Washington to wed. From her throat hung a gold locket, in which was pasted a picture of the youthful lover. This was also a present from Stuart.

Her face was slightly discolored by the three-day stay in the water. There were a few scratches and gashes on the cheeks, but the features were unmarred. Her hair was gathered in a suit of somber black and wore a white necktie, which was invariably his dress when with his fiancée.

Finding of His Body.

The fates decreed that his body should be found in the river at a point directly in front of Mr. Shonts' home, in which the remains of the girl lay, waiting for his to be found in order that they might make life's last journey together. Stuart's body was discovered near a brush pile about 20 yards from the bridge yesterday morning, and immediately taken to the undertaker.

After both bodies were prepared for burial the relatives permitted visitors to view them. All day long a steady stream of humanity poured across the dangerous swinging bridge from which the two leaped, one to suicide and the other to rescue. The crowd became so dense that the bridge sagged down so low, it was believed a collapse was inevitable.

Many persons flocked into the room where the bodies lay that the floors began to crack, and the relatives allowed only fifteen to go in at one time. Mothers who took their children to look at the sweet, smiling face for the last time, went bitterly and hurried from the room. The room where the girl's body lay.

Buried in Same Grave.

This morning floral tributes arrived from Waynesboro, Covington, and Staunton. Messengers were kept busy all day with the remains of the procession started. Conspicuous among the designs was a large, handsome cross from Chesapeake and Ohio railroad workmen. Both caskets were entirely obscured from view as the procession started across the river to the church.

In the southeast section of the cemetery, located on the side of a hill just beyond the residential section of the city, the interment was made. The sepulcher was dug on Captain Gay's plot. In one corner lay his three little girls, who died within a year of one another, and in the other the eight-foot-wide mound was shaped with spades to-day.

Prayer was read over the red clay sod, and the last chapter in Clifton Forge's saddest romance-tragedy was written.

LAND FRAUD CASE DELAYED ONE WEEK

The Hyde-Benson-Diamond land fraud cases, which were tentatively set for trial today, before Justice Stafford, in Criminal Court No. 1, will not be called until next week.

The delay in beginning the trial was occasioned by the fact that the Herman case, which has occupied the attention of the court for the last ten weeks, was not concluded last week, as it was generally expected it would be.

It is reported the Government is having trouble in securing the presence of two women, as witnesses, who reside in San Francisco, Cal. They are Volie A. Curtis and Josephine Richards, and it is reported, used every effort to evade the service of subpoenas upon them.

Fyde, Diamond, and Benson were members of a California syndicate, which engaged in extensive land deals on the public domain in that State and other parts of the West. The charge is that they conspired to defraud the Government by means of fraudulent entries and other illegal devices.
